Three injured in explosion

Gas leak. Fort Saskatchewan blast blows walls and windows off house

ANNALISE KLINGBEIL
annalise.klingbeil@metronews.ca

Occupational Health and Safety is investigating after an explosion at a Fort Saskatchewan home injured three men and blew windows and walls off a single-family house.

The Fort Saskatchewan Fire Department responded to an explosion at 140 Al-lard Way in the South Pointe neighbourhood at approximately 1:15 p.m. Thursday.

STARS air ambulance transported one of the injured — a 33-year-old man — to the University of Alberta Hospital in critical condition with life-threatening injuries.

Preventing catastrophe?

"He was so badly burnt he was yellow. Everything, his hair, his clothes were blown right the hell off.... I was surprised he walked away from that."

Framer Damien Starrett on the disturbing scene following the explosion.

ies, said spokesperson Cam Heke.

The condition of the other two men is not known.

Damien Starrett, a framer who works in the area, said the scene after the explosion was disturbing.

He watched as a stretcher transported one man into an ambulance while a second man with a burnt body walked away from the home.

"He was so badly burnt he was yellow," Starrett said.

"Everything, his hair, his clothes were blown right the hell off."

Starrett said the man looked like he was in shock and was covered by a blanket.

"His poor skin and everything was just burnt to a crisp. I was surprised he walked away from that," Starrett said.

Late in the afternoon, Fort Saskatchewan officials said the cause of the explosion was a gas leak in the basement of the home.

The force of the explosion blew out the home's windows, side walls and rear wall and littered the ground with debris.

Six weeks ago, Nicole Hawco moved into a house located two doors down from the explosion. She said she thinks the homes have been built too quickly.

"When I seen it (the damaged home), I said, 'You know what, that don't surprise me none,'" Hawco said.

Daughter. Edmonton parents charged with murder

An Edmonton couple charged with starving and abusing their young twins are to appear in court Friday on new charges of second-degree murder and criminal negligence causing the death of one of the girls.

In addition, they will still face original charges of aggravated assault, criminal negligence causing bodily harm and failing to provide the necessities of life.

Paramedics were called last May to a home where they found the two-year-old girls suffering from injuries and severe malnourishment. Police said they weighed just 13 and 16 pounds.

One of the girls, "M," went into cardiac arrest and spent the next three months in a coma virtually brain dead.

Doctors said she had an irreversible brain injury and would never regain consciousness, but the parents fought to keep her on life support, citing their religious beliefs and their love for the girl.

Court of Queen's Bench Justice June Ross ruled she should be taken off life support.

"There are further medical challenges and further invasive treatments aimed only at continuing a life that holds no benefit for her," Ross said in her ruling.

The Alberta Court of Appeal agreed it was in the girl's best interest to be allowed to die.

The Supreme Court of Canada refused to interfere with that ruling.

The parents were allowed one last visit with the girl in hospital, meeting individually with her for 20 minutes under police escort.

She died Sept. 20.

The surviving twin and an older brother, who had not been injured, are now in foster care. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatchewan Dr. set to close in April

Traffic nightmare.
Work needed to ensure bank doesn't slide and cause road failure, problems

RYAN TUMILTY

With the aim of preventing a large catastrophe, the City of Edmonton will close a portion of Saskatchewan Drive starting in early April.

The closure, which still needs council approval, will affect the area between 101 Street and 90th Avenue.

City crews have to close the road to install a retaining wall to prevent the bank underneath the road from tumbling into the river valley.

Pal Lach, a city geo-technical engineer, said there is no reason for alarm, but the work still needs to be done.

"We have some movement just at the edge of the roadway and the timber walkway," he said.

Lach said what the city is really trying to avoid is a failure of the road, while the Walterdale Bridge project is ongoing.

"It's not at high risk for failure, but because the Walterdale Bridge project is going ahead soon, and there will be road closures, we wanted to get this completed," he said.

Lach said the city has been monitoring the bank for years and has noticed heavy rains in the past few years have weakened it.

In addition to building a retaining wall, the $1.7-million project will replace the existing timber walkway with a concrete one.

Coun. Ben Henderson, who represents the area, said it's going to be a traffic nightmare but he sees no way around it.

"If the work has to be done it has to be done. Clearly, we can't afford to have it all fall in," he said.

Henderson also agrees it is prudent to fix it now rather than during the construction period for the Walterdale Bridge.

Effects

- Traffic. The city estimates 17,000 vehicles a day use the portion of Saskatchewan Drive that will be closed.
- Timeline. The total closure will come into play in April, ending sometime in June, and then the road will be reduced to one lane eastbound until August.

"It is all about just making sure that we don't have everything closed at the same time."

Headed to Washington. Redford 'optimistic' about pipeline approval

Premier Alison Redford, who is heading to Washington this weekend to lobby for the Keystone XL pipeline, says she remains confident the project will be approved.

"I'm still very optimistic about that," Redford said on Thursday after she met with her caucus at Government House.

"I think everything that we're doing right now is about ensuring that we have a more sustainable and stronger record with respect to environmental management."

The trip comes after recent comments from U.S. President Barack Obama and Secretary of State John Kerry about the importance of all nations combating climate change. Redford said she will discuss not only the need for Keystone, but also the province's environmental track record.

That record includes a $15-per-tonne levy on carbon for large emitters who do not meet legislated limits. Alberta has also invested $167 million in 43 clean-energy projects.

"We've always said that that connection between economic development and the environment is fundamental," Redford said.

TransCanada's $7-billion Keystone XL line would take Alberta's heavy oil to refineries on the U.S. Gulf Coast. It still needs the Obama administration's approval because it crosses an international border.

Opponents of the pipeline argue that short-term reliance on so-called "dirty oil" from carbon-intensive operations will do long-term damage to the environment through global warming. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Prediction. Provincial budget cuts bad for city's bottom line: Economist

There are times when being Alberta's capital has its downside, and the coming provincial budget could be one of them, Edmonton's chief economist says.

John Rose says the ripples from the provincial budget are going to spread across the city.

"With a wage freeze in place and the threat of job losses to come, there aren't a lot of provincial public servants who are going to go out and buy a new house or new car," he said.

Rose had forecast that the city's economy would grow by about four per cent in 2013, but he said big layoffs in the provincial government will hurt that projection.

"I wouldn't suggest that this is going to lead to a really significant downturn, but those actions will shave some growth off of the city's economic outlook."

Rose estimates that some 15 to 20 per cent of the local population has a paycheck connected to the provincial government, whether they work directly for the province or at a university or hospital.

headaches that doctors attributed to a small piece of the tumour remaining in her frontal lobe.

In January, doctors operated on Henry in a new neurosurgical suite at the University of Alberta Hospital.

Today, the 29-year-old is headache-free and says she feels like a million bucks.

Henry was one of the first patients to be operated on in the Dan and Bunny Widney Intraoperative Magnetic Resonance Imaging Surgical Suite, which opened in January.

The room, which looks like something straight out of the future, provides doctors with state-of-the-art equipment.

Specialized equipment lets surgeons confirm they have completely removed a brain tumour during an operation, thus preventing the need for follow-up surgeries such as the one Henry had years after her first surgery in 1999.

"If they had this 14 years ago, I would only have had to have the one surgery, because they would have gotten all the tumour that time," she said.

The $10.7-million suite was funded by the Government of Alberta, the University Hospital Foundation and the Stollery Children's Hospital Foundation.

"This is the most advanced suite in Canada," said Dr. Keith Aronyk, clinical department head for neurosciences in the Edmonton Zone of Alberta Health Services.

Edmonton police won't be charging for day-long rodeo

Not a cash cow. Police say the bull's release, meant to help lure back an escaped calf, was a simple accident

Police in Edmonton say a day-long standoff with a rogue bull didn't cost the force extra money and the animal's owner will not be charged.

Police spokesman Chad Orydzuk describes Wednesday's cattle caper as a minor accident, not a crime.

The bull's owner set it free to lure back a calf that had escaped while being unloaded at a slaughtering plant.

The owner and animal bylaw officers quickly captured the calf, but the larger beast wandered into a fenced lot behind a strip mall and stubbornly refused to leave.

Orydzuk says five officers were at the site throughout the day to ensure the bovine didn't get out and hurt someone.

The tactical team was also called out and consulted — but all officers were on duty anyway and didn't require more pay.

Orydzuk says police left the job of rounding up the bull to the city's animal bylaw officers, provincial wildlife workers, a veterinarian and the bull's owner.

Over several hours, they came up with various plans to capture the animal. They tried to move it using snowmobiles, blasted air horns and sirens at it, threw snowballs and shot rubber bullets.

After 11 hours, they shot the bovine with a tranquilizer gun, scooped up the beast with a front-end loader and put it onto a waiting cattle trailer.

Hawrelak Park could see huge pool by next year

This concept drawing shows the proposed beach and water feature next to the existing Hawrelak Park Lake. SUPPLIED/CITY OF EDMONTON

Edmontonians could soon be sunning themselves on the sandy beaches of Hawrelak Park Lake while their children play in a brand new soccer-field-sized wading pool.

City councillors will review a new plan for a beach and water area in Hawrelak Park next week. For an estimated $5 million, the new area could be in place by the summer of 2014.

The proposal would rest beside the existing lake, with a ring of sand surrounding a new wading pool area. The city hopes they can set up a beach area near the lake but actually keep people out of the larger body.

"The new body of water will be treated and filtered so that is intended as a wading pool, and we are designing it so we won't encourage people to go into the lake," said Roger Jevne, the director of park and facility development.

He said Hawrelak Park is an ideal setting for such a facility.

"We are trying to create that more unique feel down here, where you are down by the water."

Mayor Stephen Mandel has advocated for a beach area at the lake before but rejected the last suggestion administration brought forward: A $60-million plan to make the entire lake suitable for swimming.

Coun. Kim Krushell said the new plan will have to compete with other priorities but it is much more reasonable.

"It is certainly a more cost-effective approach than the original price tag of what we heard at committee." RYAN TUMILTY/METRO

The plan

The city hopes to do the work this coming fall, while work is being done to improve Hawrelak Park Lake for the International Triathlon Union Grand Final, which the city is hosting in 2014.

- The new water feature would use roughly one-and-a-half times the water used in the city hall water feature. The city believes it would freeze in winter for skaters.

CYCLING APPEARS TO FACE AN UPHILL, ICY AND POCKMARKED CLIMB TO ACCEPTANCE

Cyclists vs. motorists

In the battle between us and them, I am both. I have been honked at, yelled at and threatened. I've also done my share of yelling and threatening (windows up, of course).

It was obvious from Wednesday's transportation meeting that the biggest challenge facing the city is not where it will find 500 kilometres of bike routes, but how it will change the culture of "us vs. them."

Inside the Crestwood School gymnasium where it was held, it was easy to distinguish who was who, either by age, the grip on their shoes or how they vented.

Pro-bikers were fond of the sticky-notes and posted them on maps of proposed routes with such messages as "Bikes belong yay!" and "Ride a bike and you won't have trouble finding parking." (Both, by the way, had smiley faces.)

Pro-drivers were generally vocal, choosing instead to debate, sometimes berate, anyone with a City of Edmonton lanyard, especially the one around Tyler Golly's neck.

The general supervisor of sustainable transportation knows that the battle isn't just uphill — it's pockmarked, icy and very narrow. "Change is scary to everybody, regardless of how dramatic it is," he said.

In the battle between us and them, I am both. I have been honked at, yelled at and threatened. I've also done my share of yelling and threatening (windows up, of course). But the more of the former I receive, I do less of the latter.

Like many Edmontonians who've recently added cycling to their modes of transportation, I am weaning myself off car addiction. The symptoms include driving for distances under five minutes, writing letters to the editor about snow-clearing and calling your councillor about eternal traffic lights.

How addicted are we? You don't have to count the times you hear "potholes" in a day to know that, of the eight major Canadian cities, ours is the most car-reliant.

According to Statistics Canada, 77 per cent of us get to work behind the wheel. It's not surprising then that we also have the shortest commute times.

In a city as affluent and spread out as ours, cars are both a privilege and a right. Never mind that many of us can't afford the steel, gas and insurance, or that a subgroup prefers peddles or shoes — taking cars away from Edmontonians is like taking guns away from Americans.

But of course, the proposed bike routes that Mayor Stephen Mandel approved, and then more recently called a "nightmare," are not threatening to pry your steering wheel from your cold, gloved hands. They're simply trying to encourage you to let go every so often, or at least make some room for someone who will.

There are many reasons why you should.

Marked bike lanes (as opposed to shared roads) improve traffic flow and reduce bicycling injuries — a win-win-win for motorists, cyclists and insurers. According to a University of Texas study, bike lanes even make for safer motorists.

In fact, any on-street bike infrastructure — even some simple signage painted on the lanes that "us and them" already share — boosts Edmontonians' willingness to ride, a noble cause in itself.

So keep that in mind the next time you're about to pound your horn, and maybe try the five-finger salute instead.

Union fears civil servants will be assaulted over EI overhaul

Employment insurance. Employees have been hand-delivering surprise papers to EI recipients

The union representing federal employees is asking the government to stop sending its workers for unannounced visits to the homes of employment insurance recipients.

The union says it fears for the safety of its members, given the level of public anger over changes to the EI system.

"We've been hearing from (civil servants) who have gone to houses ... and they've been badly received," Larry Rousseau, a spokesman for the Public Service Alliance of Canada, said on Thursday.

"What will it take — an untoward or unfortunate incident (for these visits to stop)? Why do we have to test the limits of people's patience like this?"

He spoke following a report by The Canadian Press that public servants have been making unannounced visits since January as part of an examination while EI is being overhauled.

During those visits, federal employees have been hand-delivering questionnaires and requests for people to appear at their regular EI interviews.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper defended the house calls when asked on Thursday. "Every year, unfortunately, in our employment insurance system, hundreds of millions of dollars are identified or are lost through false, fraudulent or inappropriate claims," he said.

About 1,200 beneficiaries will be visited through the end of next month.

From now on, people who frequently claim EI are expected to accept any job for which they're qualified within 100 kilometres of home, as long as the pay is 70 per cent of their previous salary.

Egypt. Protesters hope to send Morsi to the moon

An Egyptian opposition group has made a novel protest against President Mohammed Morsi by signing him up for a chance to win a trip to space.

The April 6 Youth Movement said on its Facebook page Thursday that it had entered the Islamist leader's name in the contest because it wanted to be rid of him. It called on supporters to vote for the leader.

"For sure, no one in the universe can put up with blatant lies, reneging on promises except for the brotherly people of the moon," the group wrote on its post.

"It is for this reason that the president needs your votes. President Morsi, we wish you safe travels."

April 6 was a driving force behind the 2011 uprising that toppled Hosni Mubarak's re-

California

U.S. faces test of gay-marriage talk

The Obama administration is considering urging the U.S. Supreme Court to overturn California's ban on gay marriage.

The administration faces heightened expectations from gay-rights supporters after President Barack Obama, who only last year came out with his support, has become far more vocal in his second term.

His administration has a week to file a brief outlining its opinion on the California ban, known as Proposition 8. While it is unlikely to sway the high court, the government's opinion does carry weight with the justices.

Opponents of the ban believe the president signalled his intentions when he declared in last month's inaugural address that homosexuals must be "treated like anyone else under the law."

Former Scouts leader admits to sexual abuse

A former leader with Scouts Canada has pleaded guilty in Winnipeg to several sex charges involving minors.

Stuart Garrett Young, 40, has admitted to sexual assault, sexual exploitation, making child pornography and other offences.

His sentencing hearing is set for April 15.

Young was a longtime volunteer with Scouts Canada and helped run an outdoor program for kids 14 to 17 years old.

At the time of his arrest last summer, police alleged Young had abused one of his victims from 2009 to 2011.

Young was suspended from Scouts Canada as soon as the group became suspicious of him and notified police.

Man says sorry for false 'starlight tour' tale

Native-police relations. He had accused Winnipeg officers of dumping him in remote location but GPS, video proved the claim a lie

A young aboriginal man has apologized for falsely accusing two police officers of taking him on a so-called starlight tour.

Winnipeg police and native leaders hope the apology will help improve the sometimes-bitter relationship between officers on the beat and aboriginal residents in the inner city.

"I'm sorry for jeopardizing the reputation of the Winnipeg Police Service. I want to say sorry to the police officers for putting them in that situation," Evan Maud, 22, said Thursday. The public show of remorse was part of a restorative justice program that allowed Maud to avoid trial on a public-mischief charge.

"I'm also deeply sorry to their families, friends and colleagues for causing them to doubt, mistrust and question the two police officers."

On Dec. 3, 2010, Maud claimed that he had been walking down a street when he was stopped by two officers in a patrol car who accused him of being drunk. He said the officers drove him outside city limits, took his coat and left him alone in freezing weather.

The tale bore striking similarities to stories of starlight tours in other cities.

Starlight tour is the name used when suspected troublemakers are dropped off far from home rather than police following through with an official arrest.

Maud's story quickly unravelled. Video from Winnipeg Transit showed that he was on board a bus at the time. And the police cruiser's GPS showed the vehicle wasn't anywhere near city limits.

Maud did not say why he made up the story. His uncle, Joseph Maud, would not elaborate other than to say his nephew had been under the influence of alcohol. "It's between him and the Creator.... He acknowledged today that he is sorry." THE CANADIAN PRESS

OK for police to search phones without a password: Court

The right of police officers to look through someone's phone depends on whether there's a password, Ontario's highest court has ruled.

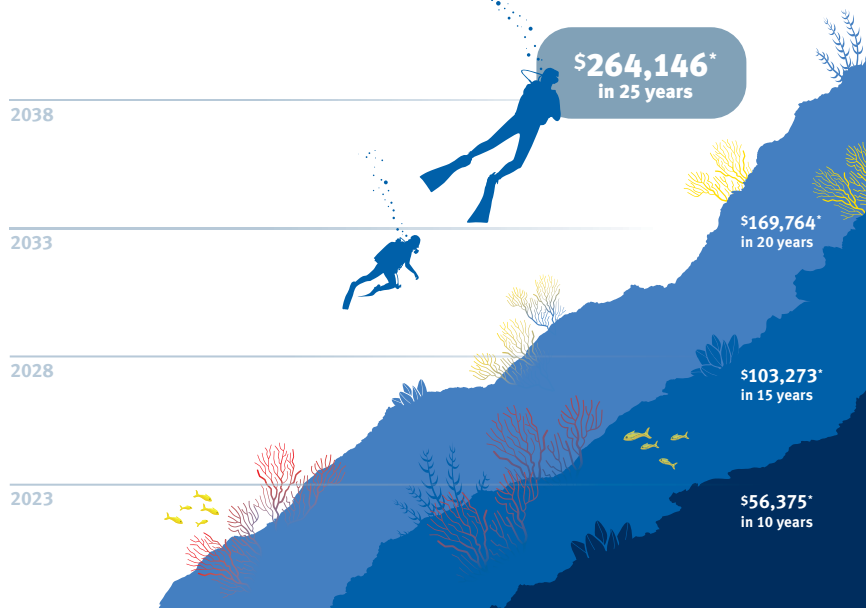

It's all right for police to have a "cursory" look through a phone upon arrest if it's not password protected, but if it is, investigators should get a search warrant, the Ontario Court of Appeal said. The lawyer for a man convicted of robbery argued police breached his rights by looking through his phone after his arrest.

India. Police search for men accused of raping and killing three sisters

Indian police said Thursday they have launched a man-hunt for men suspected of raping and killing three sisters, aged five to 11, in the latest case of sexual violence to grip the country.

The sisters' bodies were found in a village well in Maharashtra state on Feb. 14 after they had gone missing from school, police officer Javed Ahmed said. The area is more than 1,000 kilometres south of New Delhi, the capital.

As the victims' mother accused police of a shoddy investigation, enraged villagers forced shops to close, burned tires and blocked a national highway passing through the area for several hours on Wednesday, demanding justice.

"The police did not take the case seriously and did nothing for two days," the CNN-IBN television news channel quoted the mother as saying. Her name was withheld.

New detective takes over Oscar Pistorius murder investigation

Sensational twist. Prosecutors say timing of murder charges against former lead detective 'totally weird'

Ahead of a judge's decision on whether to release Oscar Pistorius on bail, South African police on Thursday appointed a new chief detective in the murder case, replacing a veteran policeman who is himself charged with attempted murder.

The sensational twist in the state's troubled investigation fuelled growing public fascination with the case against the double-amputee Olympian, who is charged with premeditated murder in the shooting death of his girlfriend, Reeva Steenkamp, in the early hours of Valentine's Day.

- Botha acknowledged Wednesday in court that nothing in Pistorius' version of the fatal shooting of Steenkamp contradicted what police had discovered, even though there have been some discrepancies.
- Botha also said that police had left a 9 mm slug in the toilet and had lost track of allegedly illegal ammunition found in Pistorius' home.

ing a week ago, is backed by a high-powered team of lawyers and publicists. The abruptness of his fall, and its gruesome circumstances, have gripped a global audience and put South Africa's police and judicial system under the spotlight.

Much of the drama Thursday happened outside the courtroom as South African police scrambled to get their investigation on track.

The decision to put police Lt. Gen. Vinesh Moonoo in charge came soon after word emerged that the initial chief investigator, Hilton Botha, is facing attempted-murder charges, one day after he offered testimony damaging to the prosecution.

Bulewa Makeke, spokeswoman for South Africa's National Prosecuting Authority, said the attempted-murder charges had been reinstated against Botha on Feb. 4.

Police say they found out about the charges after Botha testified in Pistorius' bail hearing Wednesday.

Scusi! We were too tough on Italian menu: Quebec gov't

French-language laws. Quebecers joked about how they would never relinquish their right to eat pasta after spat

The Quebec government says its language watchdog was a little too aggressive in chasing after an Italian restaurant for excessive use of Italian on its menu.

The provincial minister responsible for language says she realizes the agency went too hard after the Montreal restaurant Buonanotte.

"I recognized that there was an excess of zeal," Diane De Courcy told reporters Thursday in Quebec City.

Speaking more generally, she said similar mistakes wouldn't be made in the future. She said the Office Québécois de la langue française (OQLF) would be more careful to use a loophole in the application of the language law that offers some leeway for foreign cultural and food products.

"Not that there's ever a 100 per cent guarantee — these are human beings doing these inspections," De Courcy said.

It's an abrupt reversal of roles for the Parti Québécois government — which has spent years, since its days in opposition, urging the office to apply the law more strictly.

The agency recently visited the Montreal eatery after receiving a citizen's complaint, and it agreed that certain words on the menu needed to be switched to French.

Among them: "pasta" and "calamari." They did leave the word "pizza" alone.

Tests conducted after Canadian's death didn't find any live bacteria that would cause illness

Canadian tourist Elisa Lam had been missing for about two weeks when officials at the historic Cecil Hotel in downtown Los Angeles found her body in a water cistern on the hotel roof.

Guest complaints about low water pressure prompted a maintenance worker to make the gruesome discovery Tuesday, and officials were trying to determine if the 21-year-old was killed or if her death was just a bizarre accident.

The discovery of Lam's body called into question the safety of the hotel's water. She was found in one of four cisterns that provide guests with water for washing and drinking. Los Angeles County Department of Public Health of-

Background

Lam, of Vancouver, travelled alone to Los Angeles on Jan. 26 and was last seen five days later at the hotel near Skid Row.

- The cisterns are on a platform above the roof. To get to the tanks, someone would have to go to the top floor and then take a staircase with a locked door and alarm preventing roof access. A ladder would have to be taken to the platform and the side of tank would have to be climbed.

officials issued a do-not-drink order and county health official Angelo Bellomo says chlorine in the water likely killed any bacteria in the tank where Lam's body was found. The lab tests didn't find any live bacteria that would cause illness.

U.S. Laura Bush wants out of pro-gay marriage ad

Former U.S. first lady Laura Bush wants to be removed from a pro-gay marriage group's advertising campaign featuring prominent people speaking on the topic.

The Respect for Marriage Coalition has launched print, television and online ads that also include clips of President Barack Obama, former vice-president Dick Cheney and former secretary of defence Colin Powell talking about same-sex marriage.

Bush spokeswoman Anne MacDonald says Bush "did not approve of her inclusion in this advertisement nor is she associated in any way with the group that made the ad."

The campaign features a clip of Bush saying on CNN, "When couples are committed to each other and love each other then they ought to have the same sort of rights that everyone has."

Genocide. Woman loses American citizenship

Jurors on Thursday convicted a woman of lying to obtain U.S. citizenship by denying her role in the 1994 Rwanda genocide.

The verdict came nearly a year after another jury in New Hampshire failed to reach one. Federal prosecutors changed their witnesses and strategy for the new trial.

Beatrice Munyenyezi put her head down on a courtroom table and started weeping.

U.S. District Judge Steven McAuliffe stripped her of her citizenship — in the same courthouse where she obtained it a decade ago — and ordered her detained until her sentencing, scheduled for June 3. She faces up to 10 years in prison and deportation.

Munyenyezi's 18-year-old daughter, Saro, sobbed as she left the courtroom.

Defence attorney David Ruoff said they will appeal her conviction.

Canada
Innovates

Part 3

The final part of Metro's series on Canadian innovation may include some failed ideas, but could we have a winner when it comes to today's design?

You'll notice highlighted words in the text. These are words we feel are important to understanding the stories and may help you digest their meaning a little bit easier.

Why are some cities more innovative than others? Find out from Calgary Mayor Naheed Nenshi at metronews.ca/video/naheednenshi

Entrepreneur and TV personality Arlene Dickinson weighs in on Canada's innovation inertia

The 2008 recession put a damper on innovation in Canada, says Arlene Dickinson of Dragons' Den, and while things are now "turning a corner," she believes the country still has a long way to go.

"Other places have been innovating at a rapid speed, and we haven't been putting as much time and attention into it," Dickinson told Metro in a recent interview.

"My concern about the state of innovation is that it's lagging behind."

The problem, according to the high-profile investor and businesswoman, is not a lack of entrepreneurial spirit in Canada.

Quite the contrary, in fact. "You think about Dragons' Den and the number of entrepreneurs in the country that are coming forward — I think we are being very entrepreneurial," Dickinson said.

"But that's kind of a new phenomenon. That's happened in the last three or four years as we come out of a bad economy, because that's what's going to drive a new economy."

The sticking point for many of these would-be innovators is going from concept to commercialization.

As an example, she pointed to the "3-D Sawhorse" — an innovative hardware product developed in the garage of 82-year-old Sam Koffski, which Dickinson snapped up on Season 6 of Dragons' Den.

Falling behind

"Other places have been innovating at a rapid speed, and we haven't been putting much time and attention into it."

Venture Communications CEO Arlene Dickinson

The elderly entrepreneur had a great idea on his hands, Dickinson said, but struggled finding the effective financing, patents, manufacturing and distribution.

With a little help, though, that soon changed, and the product could hit retail shelves by the spring.

"It's about to go into stores, hopefully across the world," Dickinson said. "Sometimes what great ideas need is just somebody to open the doors and also to put the weight behind the idea to make it successful."

On a broader scale, Dickinson said Canada needs to change its mentality when it comes to innovation and make it a large part of the national discourse.

"We have to start talking about it more, making it part of the conversation of business in this country," she said. "If we don't, we're going to be in trouble. We're going to be left behind, absolutely."

Canada's closet of colossal failures

With great ideas come great failures, and Canada has had plenty of failures. But that's really no surprise given Canadians' entrepreneurial spirit.

Tom Villedmaire is the co-author of Colossal Canadian Failures, a short history of things that seemed like a good idea at the time and an ode to Canada's innovative spirit gone haywire. Metro spoke with him about why failure is an important step in the innovative process.

In terms of innovation, where exactly did most of these ideas fail?

A lot of these so-called failures were victims of timing — they were good ideas but out of synch with the times. Some were marketing failures — the consumers just weren't convinced of the potential. Others were situations where the inventor was the victim of backers who lost confidence too early or got greedy. And some were just weird. George Kavanaugh's idea to use carrots for rectal treatment (with a recess in the carrot for medication) was really an odd idea from the start. And the idea of a perpetual motion machine made from wood — which, as we all know, creates sparks when two pieces of it are rubbed together and which, as we all know, burns very easily — was just plain wrong.

What was the best idea that went wrong? Why? And could it have worked if the situation was different?

Well, there are a few contenders, but I think ultimately it has to be the Avro Arrow — a supersonic, all-weather jet fighter that did very well in test flights with pilots.

But like almost every other government project, the costs were significantly higher than had been initially estimated ($1.5 million to $400 million to $700 million). The Liberals were in power when the Arrow was built and had to defend the expense. When John Diefenbaker's Conservatives defeated the Liberals in 1957, it took them under two years to cancel the Arrow program.

Were these mostly bad ideas or were they just developed wrong?

Some were bad ideas from the start, but in a lot of other cases, the inventors — or their backers — just lacked the self-confidence or resources to follow something through. Two guys from Toronto had a working light bulb before Thomas Edison. They couldn't raise money to develop it so they sold the patent to Edison, who was working on something similar and just rolled their idea into the mix.

Would you still call these inventors innovators, just because they were willing to try something new and different?

Many of these people were innovators and were brilliant. Not all, however. Samuel Hughes was a Conservative minister in charge of getting Canada ready for the First World War. Among his other questionable decisions, he registered a patent in his secretary's name for a new and improved shovel and ordered the shovels for his troops. In fact, the soldiers needed shovels to dig the foxholes and trenches that would help protect them in battle. But Hughes' secretary suggested they could use the shovels as shields and put holes in them so the soldiers could shoot from behind them. A shovel with a hole in it just isn't the most effective shovel.

Has Canada learned from these mistakes?

I think Canada has learned a little, but there are still plenty of Canadians who head south to "make it big," and that is a symptom of a problem. And some might say Canada doesn't always have the confidence and boldness to support its inventors and innovators.

Can future innovators learn from them?

I think future innovators can draw inspiration from even the failures. Anyone who wants to try something new is daring to break new ground. That's a scary thing. Failure and doing something new are roommates; they're twins. You can't have one without the other. Even Alexander Graham Bell had failures — like the Cygnet II, a plane he designed with wings created from a wall of kites. At the time, there was nothing that had enough power to get the plane airborne in the first place. But he's not remembered for that; he's remembered for his successes.

How do you see Canada in terms of innovative thinking these days?

We have pretty amazing technology people in Canada. You look at the BlackBerry and the Canadarm and even the arms industry with the LAV3 or Stryker. High-tech means high pay and good jobs, so it's important to keep that kind of thing in the country.

Light-sabre classes teach Star Wars fans to feel the force

San Francisco. Ever wanted to put 'Jedi' on your resumé? This workshop will give you the requisite moves

A group of San Francisco Star Wars fans have created a combat choreography class for Jedis-in-training with their weapon of choice: The light sabre.

At a recent class, Alain Bloch, the self-proclaimed Jedi Master at Golden Gate Knights, demonstrated a slicing technique. He has a background in martial arts and stage combat.

"Always be mindful of the presence!" he said, donning a Luke Skywalker outfit and a green light sabre.

With Star Wars movie music coursing through the dance studio, his disciples clutch their neon-glowing light sabres. These self-proclaimed Star Wars geeks slice and parry as they follow Bloch's lead, and they get a little exercise, too.

People in a recent class, including a couple on a date, said they embraced their quirkiness and had even converted some of the skeptical into the Jedi order.

"At first they giggle because they think it's a little silly. Then they're like, 'Actually that's kind of cool,'" said Julio Reyes, a student. Not all Jedis-in-training are rooting for the good guys. Some came to embrace the dark side of the force.

"I just love Vader, period," said the Darth Vader-clad student Gary Ripper. "Just his voice, the way he moved, the power of him. I just liked the powerfulness of him."

TV. Nielsen to measure broadband audiences

The company that measures television viewership said Thursday it will soon begin counting people who watch programming through broadband in addition to the traditional broadcast or cable hook-up.

Nielsen's move is a significant step toward recognizing a world where the definition of TV viewing is swiftly changing and toward satisfying clients concerned that the company isn't keeping up with those changes. Nielsen is also developing ways to track content on tablets and mobile phones.

For many years, roughly 99 per cent of homes in the U.S. had televisions that received service through broadcast, cable or satellite signals.

Now the number of homes without such service is 4.2 per cent — and growing each year. An estimated three-quarters of those homes still have TVs, and their owners watch programming through game consoles or services like Netflix and Amazon. Starting in September, Nielsen will have meters that can monitor viewership in those homes, said Brian Fuhrer, a senior vice-president at Nielsen. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rona to cut 200 jobs across Canada

Home improvement retailer Rona Inc. plans to cut 200 full-time administrative jobs across Canada. The company continued to underperform in the fourth quarter, and is looking for ways to become more efficient and improve its customer experience.

The downsizing is part of Rona's plan to focus on its core businesses and reduce other holdings. Investors have been unhappy with its financial performance, especially since it turned down a takeover offer from Lowe's last year. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lego gets sales boost from girls' product line

Toys. Danish company was unable to keep pace with demand for series that includes a beauty shop and dream house

Lego's sales soared 25 per cent last year thanks in part to its new series of building blocks designed for girls.

The privately owned company said Thursday that on revenue of about $4.2 billion its net profits grew 38 per cent, to about $1 billion.

The company, based in western Denmark, said Lego Star Wars and Lego Ninjago remained among its more popular series, but it was a novel rollout for girls, Lego Friends, that sold better than expected — to the extent that production units were unable to keep pace with demand.

By the numbers

Lego said its share of the total U.S. toy market has quadrupled in five years. As of the end of 2012 it was 7.9 per cent, up 1.6 percentage points from the previous year.

In the U.S., Lego Friends surpassed early projections, with its sales eventually increasing three times more than expected, Lego said.

The new line, which includes mini-figures in pink, a dream house with a pool, and a beauty shop, was criticized by some U.S. consumer groups as reinforcing gender stereotypes.

The company, which sells products in more than 130 countries, expects sales to continue to climb in 2013, but at a slower rate due to global economic uncertainty.

Canadian stock markets to get new 'circuit breakers'

Canadian stock markets will adopt new "circuit breakers" that will briefly stop trading when there is a big drop in a major index. The changes will be consistent with measures planned for U.S. markets. In essence, under the new rules, it will take a smaller drop to trip the circuit breaker but the pauses will be shorter when they do occur. The change was announced by the Investment Industry Regulatory Organization of Canada, which helps oversee the country's securities markets. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tim's plans extra renos in 2013

Tim Hortons hopes a refreshed look for many of its stores and a new leader atop its executive team this summer will boost the brand as it endures an underwhelming economy and heavy competition from other coffee restaurants.

The chain plans to renovate about 300 of its franchised stores this year, or roughly double the amount it has most other years. Some stores will also have their drive-thru lines revamped to process more vehicle traffic in less time.

DUNK IT, SHAKE IT & ROLL THAT RIM

THE LIST
Neil Morton

1 Terrence Ross. The Raptors rookie leapfrogged a ballboy before throwing down a one-handed dunk to cement his NBA All-Star dunk contest title. The best part of the win?

He paid homage to Vince Carter by wearing his retro Raptors Jersey for one dunk, and the ballboy was the son of Twitter CEO Dick Costolo. Ross should have live-tweeted as he was dunking.

2 Seth MacFarlane. The stuffy, formal Oscars night is loosening up, with the no-holds-barred Seth (Family Guy) MacFarlane hosting the 85th Academy Awards this Sunday. The Academy Awards going edgier like the Golden Globes does is a good thing. Because at the end of the day, who really cares about the boring acceptance speeches?

3 Harlem Shake. The new Gangnam Style, this Internet dance phenomenon is based on an electronic dance track by DJ Baauer. Thousands of YouTube videos are being uploaded every day of people doing it, from sports teams to office workers. And unlike Gangnam, you don't have to be a great dancer. Which means I'll be all over this meme soon.

4 Pancake Manor. This Canadian YouTube music video series for kids by Billy Reid has garnered more than nine million views. Featuring puppets that educate with high energy music and humour, it's great for entertaining and tiring your preschoolers out — and giving parents a break. Go to pancakemanor.com to discover this brave new kids world.

5 Danica Patrick. In a historic sports achievement, Patrick became the first woman to win the pole position for the Daytona 500 — the Super Bowl of NASCAR. She beat the boys by posting a lap of 196.434 m.p.h., and starts alongside Jeff Gordon in the Feb. 24 race. Two words for Patrick: girl power!

6 Roll Up The Rim. Tim Hortons' latest Roll Up The Rim promotion has begun. It has become so well known that it now makes headlines each time it starts up. And it's upped the ante for this, their 27th annual event, by including 100 pre-paid MasterCards loaded with $5,000 each among the prizes. With my luck, I'll just settle for a double double.

7 Roberto Luongo. The Vancouver Canucks goalie may have the funniest, most self-deprecating Twitter account in sports @strombone1. He takes you inside the hockey world, poking fun at himself and others who take sport so seriously. A recent tweet said "Almost had him....." with a picture of Luongo giving up a goal he wasn't close to saving. LOL.

8 Twitter Hacker Club. A burglar hacked @burgerking's Twitter account Monday, changing the account to McDonald's profile pic. Then Tuesday, someone (reportedly the Whopper hacker) carhacked @jeep's account, saying it had been sold to Cadillac. This was quite a lesson in password security for both companies, but they did pick up plenty of new followers with the attention.

9 The Junos. The music machine that is Canadian pop star Carly Rae Jepsen picked up more award nominations this week, this time five to lead the pack for the 2013 Juno Awards, which take place in Regina on April 21. Heck, she got more than the boy who discovered her and launched her career with a tweet, the Biebs. The whole world has her number now.

10 Big Brother Canada. From a small-town elementary teacher in Nova Scotia to a T.O. socialite to a Calgary firefighter who likes to party, the first season of Big Brother Canada has all the makings of great Canadian reality TV — and evictions. The show debuts Feb. 27 on Slice. I know I'll be tuning in to check out the hijinks.

Mexican carpooling

Daily commute inspires art project

For most of us, riding on the back of a pickup truck would be a once-off trip, but for construction workers in Monterrey, Mexico, it's part of a daily commute. This bird's eye view of labourers is the theme of photographer Alejandro Cartagena's project Car Poolers, exhibited at Los Angeles' Kopeikin Gallery from Feb. 23 to April 6.

METRO WORLD NEWS

Q&A with photographer

'Simple, honest, life'

How did this photo project come about?
In the summer of 2011, I started going once or twice a week to the same spot — an overpass on Monterrey's Highway 85 going southbound to San Pedro Garza Garcia — to photograph these workers on their way to work. I would stay for two hours and get just a couple of images I liked; the speed of the trucks made it difficult to get clear shots. After a year, I've arrived with around 120 good images.

How has the reaction to your photos been?
Some people in Mexico have found them humorous, others provocative, but most are very intrigued at the choice of viewpoint to portray the issue...

What issue is that?
The social and economic kind. If these guys would go on the bus route, it would be too expensive for them, since there are no proper mass low-cost transportation systems. I hope one can reflect on how people's resilience helps them maintain hope of a better life in a country filled with social, political and violent issues.

In three words, how would you describe your photos?
Simple, honest, life.

Dwayne Johnson offers to hunt down a few criminals in exchange for less jail time for his son in Snitch. HANDOUT

CROUSE AND
MARK BRESLIN

The Rock cooks a stinker

Snitch. It's dealers vs. Dwayne Johnson in this movie, with a heavy handed look at America's War on Drugs policy

Richard: Mark, Snitch isn't a bad movie, but it is a miscast one. As charismatic as The Rock... er ... Johnson is, his physicality gets in the way. The character is a determined regular Joe willing to go to any lengths to help his son. But how much more effective would it have been if he didn't resemble a cop who could crash the drug dealers he's working with between his muscular thumb and forefinger?

Mark: I wouldn't say it was miscast, but that it was too obviously cast. Your idea of casting against type, as an everyman rather than an action hero, is a tantalizing one. I'm imagining how much more interesting a movie it would be with, say, Ryan Gosling, or even Paul Giamatti. The real question, however, is: when Susan Sarandon and Barry Pepper are support characters in a Dwayne Johnson movie, is this one of the signs of the apocalypse?

RC: Ha! I thought Pepper was OK but you could almost see Sarandon reaching for the paycheck. She has seven movies coming out this year and seems to have wedged this one in as she ran from set to set. Perhaps the movie's message that the "War on Drugs" needs to find a new plan of attack appealed to her, but she's playing this one as a character straight out of Central Casting. What did you think of Jon Bernthal as the ex-con who gives The Rock a hand. Loved him on The Walking

Dead and thought he was one of the best things about this movie, even if the conclusion to his story was far fetched.

MB: Well, he was the only one in the movie who brought an element of surprise to his scenes. As far as the story goes, I liked the premise, but I thought the storytelling was kind of sloppy and sometimes it felt like scenes were missing. The violence was restrained for this kind of movie, and I'm not sure if that's a good or a bad thing. And the villains barely registered. They were mostly nasty in theory.

RC: I found the lack of violence refreshing. Given the name, the star and the idea you might have expected this to be a shoot 'em up, and it isn't. It's a father and son story with a twist.

MB: Finally! A drug movie for the whole family!

Synopsis

Dwayne Johnson is John Matthews, owner of a construction company and estranged father to Jason (Rafi Gavron). Jason falls into a Kafka-esque legal loophole when his drug-dealing best friend implicates him as a trafficker in return for a break on jail time. Under America's strict "War on Drugs" laws Jason is facing a mandatory 10-year sentence unless he gives up the name of a co-conspirator, but because he's innocent he has no one to snitch on. John gets the action underway when he says to the U.S. Attorney (Susan Sarandon), "What if I do it for him? What if I help you make arrests?" Cue the cage match between The Rock and drug dealers.

"It's really just a smart story about people trying to get by, which is what I always look for..."

Jack the Giant Slayer. Star takes on the role of a well-intentioned knight who needs a little help from his sidekick Jack

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Ewan McGregor gets his daring-do on for director Bryan Singer in Jack the Giant Slayer, playing a knight who's forthright and heroic — to a fault — as he and Jack (Nicholas Hoult) try to rescue a princess from the aforementioned giants. But McGregor's inspiration for the character may surprise you.

You look fantastic in this movie. It seems like you haven't aged in the last 10 years. What gives?

(Laughs) I don't have a secret to that, I'm afraid.

Ewan McGregor, right, loves the humour of his character in Jack the Giant Slayer. HANDOUT

When you're presented with a forthright knight type of character, how do you approach that?
I don't know, it's a pretty understandable character. It's a sort of classic role. It's not something new, really. I just played what was on the page, really. It's very well and clearly written in the script. And I liked the humour. I thought the humour that was in the writing was very good. I like the fact that he's sort of very gung-ho but very often doesn't quite get things right, and then Jack has to come along behind him and tidy things up. Sort of like a Hong Kong Phooey type style. That cartoon was one of my main sources of research, Hong Kong Phooey.

The film very carefully walks that line of appealing to both kids and adults.

I think that's right. It lies in exactly the right place for a film that's being made for a family to watch. Very often these days you take your kids to films and there's inappropriate language or sexual jokes that are very clearly aimed for the parents. You don't want your kids seeing that, or at least I don't. But this is absolutely something that you could take your family to see and you wouldn't find yourself in any awkward moments with your kids, you know? It's a classic sort of family movie.

No Pakistani praise for this movie

Zero Dark Thirty.

People in the Islamic republic taking issue with inaccuracies

Pakistan stars in Zero Dark Thirty, from early scenes at a detention site to the dramatic closing minutes as Navy SEALs assault the hideout of Osama bin Laden. But the Academy Award-nominated film about the hunt for the al-Qaida leader has sparked a controversy in Islamabad about its portrayal of the country, and it won't likely be shown on the local big screen.

Partly, the film taps into national discomfort that bin Laden was found to be living for years near Pakistan's equivalent of West Point. But Pakistanis who have seen the film on DVD or Internet downloads are also making much of what they say are factual errors.

Nadeem F. Paracha, a columnist for the English language newspaper Dawn and a cultural critic in Pakistan, noted that in some scenes characters speak Arabic, whereas Pakistanis in fact speak Urdu or Pashto or one of the tens of other languages found in the country.

Bryan Cranston on the joys of awards season

If you see Breaking Bad and Argo star Bryan Cranston at Sunday's Academy Awards, know that he's not there of his own volition.

"First of all, I wouldn't go. If I'm not nominated, why am I there?" he tells Metro. "They want me to go the Oscars. I'm not nominated, but Argo is, and it's like, 'Go, go, go!' My wife's saying, 'You've got to go! We've got to go!' And it's like, 'Really? I don't know. Another tuxedo?' From the outside in, you're like, 'Wow! Look at that!' But when you're there, I'm telling you ... I've got to be careful how I phrase this because I don't want to sound like I'm not grateful. I'm grateful for the opportunities."

It's not sitting through the shows themselves that bug Cranston so much as working

"I hate red carpet interviews, because you get as a deep into a conversation as you would in a loud bar," he says "It's awful,

The odds-on Oscar favourites

Academy Awards. Gold Derby is tracking the chances for all the nominees

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

With odds of four to one, Steven Spielberg's Lincoln is still the favourite to win the big prize of best picture at the Academy Awards Sunday, according to Gold Derby, which tracks the chances for Oscar nominees.

That's despite the surge of support — and wins at other awards shows — for Ben Affleck's Argo, which started when Affleck was left out of the best director race, which Spielberg is also most likely to take, with 12 to five odds.

In the acting categories, it's no surprise to anyone that Lincoln star Daniel Day-Lewis is most likely on his way to becoming the first three-time best actor winner in Oscar History, with a 39 per cent chance of victory.

The only nominee with better odds of scoring a trophy is Anne Hathaway, nominated for best supporting actress for Les Misérables.

The best actress race is much more interesting, with Silver Linings Play- book star Jennifer Lawrence (33 per cent) edging out Zero Dark Thirty's Jessica Chastain (30 per cent). Amour star Emmanuelle Riva, thought to be something of a potential spoiler, currently has 12 to one odds of winning. Just for comparison, our predictions when the nominations were announced last month had Lincoln, Spielberg, Day-Lewis and Chastain winning. We'll see how right we are come Sunday evening.

Rating the hosts

The choice of Family Guy creator Seth MacFarlane may seem like yet another attempt by the older-skewing Oscars to appeal to the kids, but he actually has a surprising tendency toward Old Hollywood style. At parties thrown at his house, MacFarlane is even known to sing standards backed by a big band. While the jury's still out on MacFarlane's performance, we thought we'd see what he has to measure up to from the last few years' Awards.

NED EHRBAR
scene@metronews.ca

2009: Hugh Jackman

The Australian charmer — who happens to be a nominee for best actor this year — turned in the hosting performance to beat the year Slumdog Millionaire won. His opening song-and-dance number was the standout, but Broadway veteran Jackman proved he's an all-around talent.

2010: Alec Baldwin and Steve Martin

The likeable comic actors relied heavily on their own charm, but it wasn't enough to save the show. With stale jokes and awkward delivery, their performance felt too much like an ad for their equally disappointing 2009 film It's Complicated.

2011: James Franco and Anne Hathaway

As we remarked during this train wreck, "Apparently there is something James Franco can't do." This brazen attempt at pulling in younger viewers turned out to be a disaster, with current nominee Hathaway seemingly abandoned by Franco, who seemed to have — wisely — given up on the endeavor before it began.

2012: Billy Crystal

After the Franco/Hathaway disaster, the Academy went back to standby Crystal, who hosted his ninth Oscars. But the funnyman's schtick maybe went too old-fashioned, as his bits were generally panned as hokey and out of touch. Case in point: while many in that precious younger demographic might not necessarily know Crystal was dressing up as Sammy Davis Jr. in one bit, they do know what blackface is.

Arrested Development Wiigs out

As we anxiously count down days until the new season of Arrested Development is released on Netflix, a new tidbit of information came out today that made us even more impatient.

It turns out Kristen Wiig will guest star in the new episodes of Arrested Development.

Even better, Wiig will play a young Lucille Bluth. We can't imagine a better actress to play the nutty, vod-

The new season premieres on Netflix in May and will also guest star Seth Rogen, John Slattery, Ben Schwartz, Chris Diamantopoulos, Conan O'Brien, Isla Fisher and Terry Crews.

Kissing cousins and fugitive moms

In Shocking Family Secrets, viewers can learn how far people will go to keep the truth hidden on Friday. From kidnapped children reared in hiding to married cousins and fugitive moms, the series unravels deeply buried true stories and looks at why and how they got started. (OWN)

That's Precious

You can hunker down in front of the tube with a bowl of popcorn and a

More than just politics as usual

Love story. Personal life of Jack and Olivia revisited in new made-for-TV movie

SHANE GIBSON
Metro in Winnipeg

Jack Layton's story is one Laszlo Barna said he knew needed to be told as he watched the nation mourn his death.

The executive producer of Smilin' Jack: The Jack Layton Story, which was shot in Winnipeg in 2012, said the tale transcends politics.

"Some people think this is a partisan film, but when you bury someone, it's time to put those labels aside," he told Metro on set, noting Layton's great grandfather was a Father of Confederation, and his father sat as a Tory MP.

"It's a story of this kid who came originally from a political family — not NDPers — but a political family.

"This film is about a great Canadian."

Layton died in August, 2011 at the age of 61 after a battle with cancer. His death came just a few months after he led his NDP through a spring election, capturing a party-record 103 seats and becoming Canada's official Opposition.

While the film will follow much of the campaign and his political career, Barna said it would also delve into Layton's personal life, including his marriage to fellow NDP MP Olivia Chow.

"It's a love story ... about when he met Olivia, and how they got along together," he said, noting Chow lived with her mother throughout their marriage, which makes for some of the film's more comical moments. "Not a lot of marriages survive that."

The role of Layton is played by Rick Roberts and Chow is portrayed by broadcaster Sook-Yin Lee. Both actors are spending upwards of two hours in the make-up chair during the shoot to make sure they look just like the couple.

"I age through three decades being Olivia Chow," said Lee. "It helps me get into character, because when I look in the mirror and see the transformation, I'm no longer physically me."

The role is an important one for Lee, whose own sister was diagnosed with cancer a little over a year ago.

"Living with cancer is an extremely painful and distressing experience," she said. "It's something that was very close to me."

Barna hopes the final cut of the movie will inspire the next Jack Layton.

Cancelled tour. Born This Way singer says post surgery that her fans gave her strength Lady Gaga says she's had surgery to fix her hip.

The 26-year-old singer posted on her blog late Wednesday that she had hip surgery and it "happened so fast." She cancelled her Born This Way Ball tour last week.

She thanked her fans in the post, saying they gave her "a lot of strength." Lady Gaga said that as she was wheeled to surgery, she reflected on her fans. She wrote: "Sometimes you are so brave that it terrifies me. I wonder how it's even possible."

Lady Gaga cancelled more than 20 dates on the remainder of her tour, which began last April. She originally postponed four dates last week after experiencing difficulties during her concert in Montreal. She explained to fans on Twitter that she'd hurt herself while performing some time ago.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

Rihanna and Chris Brown

They found love in a hopeless place?

So much for those breakup rumours. Rihanna is celebrating her 25th birthday this week by escaping to Hawaii with Chris Brown by her side. The birthday girl posted a photo to Instagram of her smiling self perched on Brown's lap in the back of a limo.

They were also spotted seaside in Honolulu, according to E! News. "Chris was leading Rihanna by the hand," a source says of their brief beach walk. "She was puffing on something as she walked and seemed very relaxed and happy. Her hair was blowing and she twirled around. She looked totally free and like she was really enjoying her birthday. Chris was protective and made sure to hold her hand as they walked."

Rihanna was glowing, a source says

Hollywood's lone wolf?

Denzel Washington is not one for Hollywood schmoozing. "Even within the industry, I don't have any actor friends. My friends are my old friends," the Oscar nominee tells the Guardian.

Sure, but why doesn't he make any new friends, considering how often he co-stars with new people in movies? "Because I don't make friends!" he insists. "Maybe I'm not a butt-kisser. Maybe I'm not a schmoozer. I'm not about to go to a party to try to get a job. I don't want movie star friends. And being African-American, there were no big movie stars to hang out with anyway, not when I was starting out. They were just the third guy from the back. For whatever reason, I never befriended any white actors." Washington's rep later clarified the report, saying Washington followed up that statement with a few exceptions, including Tom Hanks, Mel Gibson and Julia Roberts.

Matthew Broderick put the brakes on a recent performance of his Broadway show, Nice Work if You Can Get It, when he spotted an audience member taking a video of the show, according to E! News. A rep for the production confirms that Broderick, upon noticing the filming, called a stop to the action and addressed the videographer in question, asking him politely if he would refrain from doing that.

The LaBeouf rebuff

Shia LaBeouf has exited what would have been his Broadway debut — in a revival of Orphans alongside Alec Baldwin — less than a month before previews were to begin, but there's been plenty of drama since he quit.

LaBeouf, who is rather new to Twitter, decided to use the social-networking site to publish emails between himself, Baldwin, director Daniel Sullivan and co-star Tom Sturridge that all suggest some sort of squabble between LaBeouf and Baldwin that precipitated his exit. "I'm too old for disagreeable situations," Sullivan writes in an email to LaBeouf. "You're one hell of a great actor. Alec is who he is. You are who you are. You two are incompatible. I should have known it. This one will haunt me. You tried to warn me. You said you were a different breed. I didn't get it."

Party bites worthy of an Academy Award

Canapes may sound stuffy, but they actually are the ultimate in ease when it comes to party food. Plus, they look great and can be combined in endless ways to suit any taste.

So here is simple formula for making canapes: divide them into four components — bases, spreads, toppings and garnishes. For each canape, all you do is select one item from each category, then assemble. And the easiest way to assemble enough for a party is to set out all of your ingredients (clustered by category), then just start selecting and building.

If you're planning on an Oscars viewing party, you might even consider turning the making of the canapes into a pre-party. Set out everything on the counter, pour some wine and invite a few guests to come early and help assemble (and sample, of course).

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Each spread recipe makes enough to top 24 canapes. MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bases

- 24 multigrain crackers
- 24 thin slices of seedless cucumber
- 24 toasted baguette slices
- 24 purchased phyllo cups (found in the grocer's freezer section)

Spreads

Zesty Barbecue

- 3 tbsp barbecue sauce
 - 2 tbsp red pepper jelly
 - 1/4 cup sour cream
 - Splash of hot sauce
1. In bowl, stir ingredients.

Orange Sweet Potato

- 1 sweet potato, microwaved until fork-tender
 - 2 tbsp orange marmalade
 - 1 tbsp cider vinegar
 - Salt, black pepper
1. Peel potato and mash in bowl. Stir in marmalade and vinegar. Season with salt and pepper.

Toppers

- Small cooked and peeled shrimp
- Shredded cooked chicken
- Halved cherry tomatoes
- Crab meat
- Small wedges of manchego cheese

Garnishes

- Shaved Parmesan cheese
- Sliced green and black olives
- Sliced hot peppers (such as piri piri or Peppadew)
- Sliced scallions

To assemble the canapes, arrange the bases on a large serving tray. Top each with a small dollop of one of the spreads. Press one of the topping choices into the spread, then finish each with a garnish.

LIQUID ASSETS

With the Oscar's awarded this Sunday, here are my picks for the right booze to match with each of the best picture nominees.

Les Misérables

Victor Hugo was French, loved Paris, and Paris loves the wines of Bordeaux. Go Right Bank, where merlot rules and the wines are softer and easier drinking.

Zero Dark Thirty

Osama bin Laden may have abstained, but his American hunters probably enjoyed a shot of Bourbon. Try a robust, single barrel version.

Life of Pi

I'd go with a sweeter white riesling from Germany. It likes pie.

Django Unchained

This spaghetti western, à la Tarantino, deserves a nice Italian red made with the sangiovese grape from Tuscany's Chianti region.

Lincoln

Daniel Day-Lewis is a Brit, and Lincoln had more than enough reasons to take a drink. Together they make a strong case for a full-bodied English (or U.S.) ale.

Argo

Though it's sour grapes for the Academy for leaving its helmsman off the best director list, I'm betting Ben Affleck will be drinking some bubbly, like Moët & Chandon's non-vintage Brut Imperial champagne ($60.75 to $65), when his flick wins best picture.

Storybook Ball

It's a fundraiser for a great cause, yes, but it's also a family-friendly night of fun. The Storybook Ball, in support of Ronald McDonald House Northern Alberta, promises a whimsical wonderland of kids games and crafts, followed by a fantasy feast and live auction March 2 at the Shaw Conference Centre. Tickets are $125 for adults and $30 for kids, and the cause is well worth your support. Dress as your favourite storybook character and make it even more fun! See rmhna.ca for ticket details, or call Deb at 780-439-5437.

Say yes to this dress

If you're old enough to remember the royal wedding of Charles and Diana in the early '80s, you'll recall that fairy tale gown, with a train that went on for days (25 feet, actually). The fascination with Diana hasn't waned in the years since her death, so a visit to Diana, A Celebration Exhibition on now at West Edmonton Mall is a must-do for many. Besides the iconic wedding gown, 28 of her designer dresses are on display, along with personal mementos, jewelry and more. On until June 9. Tickets at WEM guest services, and wem.ca/diana.

Exotic blooms

Who would've thought that orchids, with their delicate and exotic appearance, are often no harder to grow than houseplants? The Orchid Society of Alberta wants you to discover just some of the 30,000 species in the orchid family at their annual Orchid Fair show and sale, Friday to Sunday at the MacEwan South Campus, 7319-29 Ave. The event is an incredible display of orchid culture and one of the largest orchid plant sales in Canada. And since this bloom grows on every continent but Antarctica, you can't use that as an excuse not to attend. Ten bucks will get you in.

Lovin' Lesley

She's Lesley Pelletier — a lovely, local lass with a dynamic voice and stage presence and she's releasing her debut album Turn Down the Lights next weekend here, in her hometown. Honing her skills in cover bands and as a music therapist, this professional musician plans a small tour in Western Canada to showcase her work, but we get a chance to hear it first! Grab your ticket and CD for $25 at tixonthesquare.ca, or show up at the launch and get each for $15. The event goes March 1 at Fiddler's Roost, 8906-99 St. Support local talent, folks.

Last dance

Let's take a turn one more time this season with the Brian Webb Dance Co., as the dynamic contemporary dance troupe presents a world premiere called Seventh Sense. Brought to E-town by one of Canada's most celebrated dance companies, Wen Wei Dance, the event is a rich and complex exploration of the human condition — a tale of unconditional love. Six dancers take us on the journey, Friday and Saturday at the Timms Centre for the Arts, 87 Ave-112 St. Tickets are $35 and $20 for students/seniors at tixonthesquare.ca. Or phone 780-420-1757.

Winter Roots

It's an awesome weekend for world, folk and roots music as the Winter Roots Roundup IV settles in under one roof at Festival Place Feb. Friday to Sunday. Partners folkwaysAlive!, the U of A, Smithsonian Folkways Recordings and Pete North offer folk-loving audiences film, workshops and live performances of bluegrass, gospel — there's even a tribute to the Grateful Dead. Or, check out Tacoy Ryde, Mickey Hart Band, John Cohen or the Women of Folkways — so much to choose from. See festivalplace.ab.ca for all the event details.

Canucks vault Stars in 3rd period

Jason Garrison and Henrik Sedin scored third-period goals to help lead the Vancouver Canucks to a 4-3 victory over the Dallas Stars on Thursday.

Alex Burrows and Kevin Bieksa also scored for the Canucks, who ended a three-game losing streak (0-1-2), including a 4-3 decision to the Stars in Vancouver on Feb. 15.

Cory Schneider made 22 saves for the win.

Jamie Benn, Michael Ryder and Brenden Morrow scored for Dallas, which lost for the third time in its past four games.

NHL. Taylor Hall's knee-on-knee hit on Cal Clutterbuck likely to be reviewed Matt Cullen had two goals and an assist on Thursday as the Minnesota Wild defeated the Edmonton Oilers 3-1.

Devin Setoguchi also scored for Minnesota (8-6-2), which has won two straight. Niklas Backstrom made 25 saves to get the win.

Ryan Smyth replied for the Oilers (6-7-3), who have lost three of the first four contests of a five-game homestand in advance of a nine-game road trip. Devan Dubnyk stopped 25 shots in taking the loss.

On Thursday
Wild	Oilers

There was an ugly incident with 2:33 to play in the game when Edmonton's Taylor Hall hit Minnesota's Cal Clutterbuck knee-on-knee at centre ice. Hall was assessed a five-minute major and a game misconduct on a play certain to be reviewed by the league. Clutterbuck stayed on the ice writhing in pain and had to be helped to the Wild's locker room.

Tied 1-1 after 40 minutes, Minnesota took the lead just over two minutes into the third when Cullen sent a pass in front to a streaking Setoguchi, who beat Dubnyk with a quick shot.

Edmonton had a chance to tie it up midway through the period on a breakaway, but Sam Gagner sent his shot wide.

Cullen then gave his team a two-goal cushion with six minutes left to play by electing to shoot on a 2-on-1 and wiring a shot high past Dubnyk.

There was no scoring and few chances in a defensively minded first period, the best belonging to Minnesota's Dany Heatley, who had Dubnyk beat on a quick shot but hit the post in the final minute.

The Oilers' best chance in the first half of the game came six minutes into the second when Nail Yakupov fed Gagner on a 2-on-1 with Gagner, but Backstrom came across to make the save.

Minnesota came close midway through the second period with a flurry in front that included a huge save from Dubnyk in tight on a rebound from Heatley and another post.

Edmonton finally broke the deadlock at 12:26 of the second when Smyth picked up a rebound behind the net and quickly looped around to put the puck in from the other side before Backstrom could get across. It was the second goal of the season for Smyth, who was celebrating his 37th birthday. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jones still perfect at Scotties

Curling. Two victories on Thursday has Manitoba sitting pretty at 9-0 with focus on qualifying for 1-2 Page playoff game

The battle of unbeaten rinks at the Scotties Tournament of Hearts on Thursday delivered drama, back-and-forth scoring swings and plenty of excitement.

Manitoba's Jennifer Jones emerged triumphant after a stellar display of shotmaking gave her a 9-7 win, a guaranteed playoff berth and left Ontario's Rachel Homan with her first loss of the tournament.

Jones shot an impressive 93 per cent and always had an answer for her opponent. Homan was buoyed by the pro-Ontario crowd at the K-Rock Centre in Kingston but it wasn't enough to prevent her from suffering her first defeat.

Jones then improved to 9-0 in the evening draw with a 7-1 victory over Quebec's Allison Ross (3-6), while Homan (8-1) kept pace with a 6-5 victory over Nova Scotia's Mary-Anne Arsenault (4-5).

In other Draw 14 action Thursday night, Team Canada's Heather Nedohin (7-2) topped Alberta's Kristie Moore (1-8) by a count of 5-3 and sits alone in third, while B.C.'s Kelly Scott is fourth at 6-3 following a 9-2 victory over Saskatchewan's Jill Shumay.

Shumay and New Brunswick's Andrea Crawford are tied for fifth at 5-4.

Jones is focused on qualifying for the 1-2 Page playoff game and said she's not really concerned about maintaining a perfect record.

"We had one loss in our provincials and it kind of gave us a kick in the pants," she said after beating Homan. "Right now I feel like we're playing well and we don't need that kick in the pants. So hopefully that's true."

Jones took the lead with a pair in the eighth end against Homan and added a steal of one in the ninth.

She displayed the consistency that she's known for throughout her win over Homan, who shot just 71 per cent for the game. The young Ontario skip blew a chance to tie the game by coming up light with her final stone in the ninth end.

"Both teams played really well, both had some big ends and it just came down to a couple of shots here and there," Homan said.

Jones extended her arm in the air and had a big smile on her face when she completed the victory.

"Her eyes never leave the prize and that's hard to do," said Nova Scotia vice-skip Colleen Jones, who lost to Manitoba last Monday. "She's not distracted. She comes on the ice and she's all business."

Jets' Redmond sliced by skate

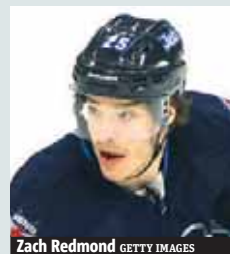

Winnipeg Jets defence-man Zach Redmond underwent surgery Thursday after being cut by a skate during practice earlier in the day.

Redmond was rushed to hospital in the Raleigh area to repair a laceration to his right femoral artery and vein in his mid-thigh region. The surgery took approximately three hours.

The 24-year-old NHL rookie was accidentally cut by a teammate's skate during a practice drill in front of the net. The team's training staff rushed to his aid as blood pooled on the ice.

Redmond will be out indefinitely, joining fellow injured Jets defenceman Tobias Enstrom, who is out two weeks with an injured shoulder.

Patrick stays out of trouble to keep Daytona 500 pole

NASCAR. Female driver plays it safe in the first 150-mile Budweiser Duel, finishes 17th out of 23

Her car led the field to green, then Danica Patrick never gave herself a chance to race for the win at Daytona.

She's saving that all-out push for the Daytona 500.

Patrick had an easy choice in her first race since winning the pole for The Great American Race. She played it safe and stayed back Thursday, keeping her pole position for the Daytona 500.

All Patrick needed to do was keep her car intact to preserve the top spot for Sunday's Daytona 500. She started on the pole for the first 150-mile Budweiser Duel before she faded into the field and finished 17th out of 23 cars.

"I suppose there's a sense

Danica Patrick stands in the garage during practice for the NASCAR Nationwide Series DRIVE4COPD 300 at Daytona International Speedway on Thursday in Daytona Beach, Fla. JONATHAN FERREY/GETTY IMAGES of relief" she kept the pole, Patrick said. "But at the same point in time, I'm a race-car driver, and it's not fun to have to protect and be careful and be cautious and drop back at times."

Patrick was nowhere near the four-lap sprint to the finish that saw Kevin Harvick hold off Greg Biffle for the win.

Patrick became the first woman in history to win a pole in NASCAR's Sprint Cup series. Team owner

Gene Haas even suggested — perhaps, jokingly — that Patrick start and park after two laps and save the car.

No driver has won the Daytona 500 from the pole since Dale Jarrett in 2000.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

Rules are meant to be broken, especially if they were made in someone else's favour. The bottom line is that your own needs come first. If that means going too far in some people's eyes, well, so be it.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Not everyone is as careful and conscientious as you and there is a real possibility that a mistake has been made. It may not be a serious one but it could affect you in some way, so check other people's work.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

There is one particular thing that needs your full and undivided attention today. You know what it is and you know you will have to focus hard if you are going to succeed. Don't let anything distract you.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

Honesty is essential, even if it means that a long-standing friendship is put to the test. You may be tempted to avoid the truth to spare someone's feelings but in the long-term it will do more harm than good.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Someone needs to keep a clear head today and that someone has to be you. Others may get emotional but you must insist on common sense all the way down the line, for their sake as well as your own.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

There are so many changes going on that you probably can't keep track of them all. Don't worry. Most of them will work in your favour. One warning though: Don't make promises you may not be able to keep.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Certain duties may be a pain but you know they have to be done. Even with its petty annoyances this could be a positive time for you. Show people that you can be trusted to work on your own.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Something you had a hard time getting your head around yesterday will be as clear as crystal today. No doubt you will mentally kick yourself for being so dense but don't worry about it. You're allowed an off day now and again.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

The first step in resolving a problem is to admit that it exists, so stop making excuses and face the reality of your present situation. The moment you do that is the moment the answers start coming.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Something is worrying you but you can't put your finger on what it might be. Whatever it is the planets suggest it's not worth the effort, so focus on more pleasant thoughts. Don't let worry become a habit.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

A new path is beckoning and all you have to do is put one foot in front of the other and start walking. Just do it, otherwise you'll find all sorts of reasons to stay where you are.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

If you have an important decision to make today, you must take your time and get it right. If people press you to decide right away you can bet there is more in it for them than there is for you.
